But Mrs. Meir warned that Israel would do everything it can to "cbop off the hands" of Arah terrorists and safeguard the borders.

The guerrillas began with an ambush of a hus carrying Arab women, killing two and wounding seven. They then invaded a home and killed the family of four before taking over schoolhouse where vacationing pupils from a religious high school were sleeping. About 22, including a couple of teachers, escaped during the day, but some 85 were still in the school at the time of the Israeli attack.

Mr. Peres said the order was given for the troops to storn the shuttered building when it became clear that the guerrillas were not going to extend their deadline.

Fifty soldiers firing automatic weapons and rocket-propelled grenades charged the huilding at 5:30 p.m., prompting the guerrillas to open fire on the hostages and the attackers.

House Unit Votes to Subpoena 11 More Tapes, Nixon Diaries

By Robert Siner

WASHINGTON, May 15 (IHT). The House Judiciary Commit-tee, rejecting White House claims that all relevant Watergate evidence had already heen released, voted overwhelmingly today to subpoens additional presidential tapes and documents for its impeachment inquiry.

The panel voted, 37 to 1, to subpoens the tapes of 11 conversations two on April 4, 1972, six on June 20, 1972, and three on June 23, 1972. The Waterrate break-in occurred on June 17, 1972.

The lone dissenter was the ranking minority member, Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., who has consistently opposed all presidential subpoenas on grounds that they are unenforceable.

The committee then approved a second subpoens. In a series of four votes, the panel demanded Mr. Nixon's diaries for nine months in 1972 and 1973 The votes all were won hy substantial majorities, though not as great as that for the vote on the tapes. Meanwhile, in a related development, President Nixon waived executive privilege and permit-ted Alexander Halg jr., his chief of staff, to testify before the Senate Watergate committee to-day, Sen. Sam Ervin ir., the panel's chairman, said.

"He's answered every question we've put to him so far," Sen, Ervin said after Gen. Haig had heen before the committee for

1 1/2 hours. The waiver of executive privilege extended only to questions about the use of a $100,000 payment made by representatives of hillionaire Howard Hughes four years ago to Charles (Bebe) Rebozo, the President's close personal friend, Sen. Ervin said.

"We learned there was considerable discussion in the White House about the Hughes money from May of 1973 on," Sen. Ervin said of Gen. Haig's testimony. Mr. Rebozo returned the money in the spring of 1973. He said he did not use it for any purpose. Herbert Kalmbach, Mr. Nixon's former personal lawyer, is said to have told the committee that Mr. Rebozo loaned the money to Mr. Nixon's two hrothers, the President's personal secretary, Rosc Mary Woods, and others. Gen. Haig had refused to testify to the panel May 2 The House Judiciary Committee

Kissinger Effort Threatened By Palestinian Terror Attack JERUSALEM, May 15 (UPI).-The Arab guerrillas' seizure of Israeli children and the ensuing gunbattle that left 24 dead further threatened the success of U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's peace efforts today and delayed them by a day.

In a strong appeal, believed directed partly at Syria, Mr. Kissinger called on all responsible governments to condemn such acts and deal with the guerrillas "severely." With the Israeli cabinet fully occupied all day with the agoniz-ing question of how to cope with the situation, Mr. Kissinger was unable to meet as scheduled with Premier Golda Meir about his deadlocked efforts to establish a cease-fire line on the Golan Heights and bring about a military disengagement between Israel and Syria.

Instead, he will meet with her tomorrow morning helore his fifth shuttle to Damascus to confer with Syrian President Hafez al-Assad, a day late.

By Tomorrow

By tomorrow night, when Mr. Kussinger is to return to Jerusalem, he is expected to know whether he can succeed in getting agreement on a ceasefire line on this trip.

With time running out and the talks still deadlocked, the prospects appear dimmer.

Mr. Kissinger did not appear to have given up all hope. Waiting to resume his diplomatic efforts, he told reporters that Israel and Syria are "moving toward each other and not away."

But, at a mintmum, Mr. Kissinger's mission has been delayed hy the tragedy at Maalot, scene of a shootout hy Israeli soldiers and Arab guerrillas who had seized children as hostages.

At a maximum, the terrorists' action could poison the political atmosphere in Israel and, if the Israelis retaliate as they have before, make a settlement more difficult.

A high American official has emphasized in the last few days that the gap between Israel and Syria has greatly parrowed. It is small in distance, the official said, but the two countries still may not be able to bring themselves to make the final concessions necessary to bridge it during this Kissinger trip. If not, the official said, Mr.

Kissinger planned to return to the area in several weeks, when they have had time to reconsider. Once the basic question of where a cease-fire line should be drawn on the Golan Heights is decided, the official said, the other issues of a huffer zone, a thinning-out of forces and the role of the United Nations in policing the agreement will tend to fall into place.

Information Minister Shimon Peres said the government had appreciated Mr. Kissinger's statement of condemnation and that he was kept more or less informed of what was happening at Maalot.

But he said no cabinet minister was able to think of anything today but bow to free the trapped children, and he refused all questions about the effect of the incident on the Kissinger mission.

There was little doubt in the minds of American officials that the timing of the attack was aimed at wrecking Mr. Kissinger's efforts. Mr. Kissinger must be back in Washington hy Sunday night at the latest.

Egyptians Worried About Consequences

CAIRO, May 15 (NYT).— Egyptian officials tonight said they hoped the "tragedy in Maalot" would not sidetrack or delay the search for a durable peace in the Middle East. There was anxiety among diplomats from moderate Arab countries that the death of a number of Israeli children at the hands of Palestinian guerrillas could lead to a hreakdown of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's mediation effort. If Mr. Kissinger's mission were to breat down now, at the mo-ment when emotional tension on all sides is at its highest, the area might well slip back into all-out war, one diplomatic observer said. Mr. Kissinger had been scheduled to come to Cairo tomorrow, according to U.S. Embassy officials, but his visit has been put off for the time being in the aftermath of the guerrilla at-A high official, speaking privately, said that Egypt condemn. ed all acts of violence against innoceot people,

"But," he added, "this tragic event occurred on the 26th anniversary of the partition of Palestine. The rights of the Palestinians have been systematically ignored all these years, and desperation is the result.

He said the tragedy should prompt all parties involved to focus their attention on the underlying causes and to go ahead "even more urgently with the search for a durable peace that includes self-determination for

LONDON, May 15 (UPI).-About 500 shipbuilding workers recelled today against a campaign by the National Engineering Union and leftist politicians to hait the delivery of four warships to Chile.

In a mass meeting, the engl-neering workers voted to reject the union's demand to cease work on two Chilean submarines they are building in Scotland.

The union had ordered a halt to work on the submarines and two frightes earlier this week be-cause they could "be used against the Chilcan people" by the mil-Itary junta in Santlago.

The union's move came after leftist cahinet ministers failed in an attempt to get Foreign Minister James Callaghan to cancel the £80-million ($)44million) contract.

The warships have been the only exception in the 10-weekold Labor government's policy of halting arms sales to regimes It considers undesirable, in what has been dubbed anti-gunboat diplomacy.

Gligorov Will Head Yugoslav Parliament

BELGRADE, May 18 (UPI).—A newly constituted Yugoslav parliament today held its opening session and elected Kiro Gligorov, an economics expert, as its president. The parliament has a wider representational basis than before. The recently proclaimed constitution was structured to give more political and economic power to ordinary workers.

Most of the delegates are newcomers, with more than 100 laborers making up about onethird of the number of delegates. All, however, are veteran Com-munist party officials.

Mr. Glistrup, ostracized and ridiculed since he was elected to the Folketing (parliament) on a wave of taxpayer discontent last December, put his party's 27 votes behind the government in return for firm pledges that income taxes and public expenditures would be cut next year and his splinter party be accepted as an equal respectable partner.

Later today, the Folketing, weary after a week of negotiations and long sessions, voted to approve the proposed sales tax

Threats of Strikes

The end of the crisis came at a time when few political observers thought elections could be avoided.

But as the Folketing relaxed, after days of pressure, threats of extensive strikes to protest the sales taxes came from across the country.

The bills will increase taxes by up to 50 percent on cars, household appliances, cigarettes, liquor and wines.

Since last Thursday, close to 100,000 workers have joined in a series of one-day strikes and demonstrations to demand Mr. Hartling's resignation and protest

Mr. Glistrup's anti-tax party held the key to the parliamentary situation after Mr. Hartling falled to compromise with the Social Democrats, the biggest party. which insisted that the sales tax measures be made part of much broader, long-term agreement on economic policies.

After Mr. Glistrup sided with the government, only three of the 10 parties in the Folketing Social Democrats, Marxist Socialists and Communists — re-mained resolved to vote against the government bills.

Townspeople, trate at the declsion to storm the building, crowded around Defense Minister Davan after the smoke cleared shouting abuse at him. He had been on the sceee most of the day and rushed to the building when the shooting was over.

Mr. Peres said the decision to charge the building came at the last minute when contact could not be made with the guerrillas through French Ambassador Jean Herly, who was a go-between at the behest of the guerrillas.

Guerrilla Warning The guerrillas shouted from a shuttered window: "We shall hold out. Don't iry to drag this out. Get in touch with the ambassador and spare the lives of your children ... "If you fail to stand by the timetable, we will blow this place up with everything and everybody still inside."

Besides the children who escaped during the day, the guerrillas sent two olore to carry the list of prisoners they wanted released. The list was handed to Mr. Dayan, who was flown immediately to Jerusalem to consult with the cabinet.

The guerrillas, members of the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, demanded that the freed prisoners be flown to Damascus or Nicosia, Cyprus.

Military sources said two of the prisoners had been taken to the school to tell the guerrillas that the others were being gathered. But there was no indication that the three would accept an exten-sion of the deadline.

A front statement from Damascus said the guerrillas demanded the release of 26 prisoners. Of these 16 were on a list presented the guerrillas to the Israelis. Five were to be selected by two of the prisoners named on this list and the Israelis themselves were to select five.

The spokesman said the guerrillas' list of 16 included three members of the "Red Front" convicted of spying for the Arabs last year. One of the three was Daoud Turki, leader of the ring. Another name on the guerrillas' list was that of Mohammed Hassan Ghrifat, a former Israell Army sergeant failed on charges of collaborating with the Pales-tinian guerrillas.

From Damascus, the Marxist front said "a disaster took piace and it is Israel's responsibility to bear the consequences."

A later front statement said: "It has been proved that the Israeli command was preparing a treacherous trick at the same time the negotiations were going on for the exchange of pri-

Throughout the Arab Middle East there was a sense of crisis concerning Mr. Kissinger's mission. Syria renewed its call for an urgent conference of Arab chiefs of state to review the situation.

In Lebanon, where armed Pales-tinian groups in the Mount Hermon foothills have drawn Israeli air strikes during the last week, there were fears of a major Israeli reprisal attack, despite official denials that the guerrillas had been based in Lebanon.

Part of Offensive

A guerrilla organization, which assumed official responsibility for the attack, presented this raid and several other sabotage incidents as part of an offensive under way by guerrilla groups operating within Israel.

Syrian officials, who had been expecting Mr. Kissinger to re-turn from Israel this afternoon and spend the evening here as the guest of President Hafez al-Assad, were noticeably disappointed this afternoon when U.S. officials here received a Kissinger message saying "not today."

Syrian officials said that "overall peace in the region is more important than any incident," and they expressed the hope that Mr. Kissinger would continue his efforts. He is expected to stop here tomorrow morning before going on to Cairo.

Soldiers Kill Two in Ulster As General Strike Begins

BELFAST, May 15 (UPI) — Troops today shot to death two men caught in the act of making bombs, the British Army said.
The deaths occurred as a general strike mounted by militant Protestants crippled Northern Ireland's industry, with sporadic street violence and power blackouts reported in some areas.

The shooting incident occurred at an abandoned farmhouse near Newry, close to the Irish Republic border. It started when a British patrol discovered two beer kegs of explosives and bomb-making equipment at the farmhouse this morning, an army spokesman said. The patroi staked out the area and this afternoon saw the two men arrive and "start work turning the explosives into bombs," he said.

"Our soldiers challenged the men three times to put up their hands and surrender. Instead, the men dived as if to pick up weapons; we opened fire." As a result of the strike, all work stopped on the Belfast docks and many factories halted their operations. Some plant owners said they shut down because they feared for the safety of their

British Press Investigations Jolt Public View of Officials

By Bernard D. Nossiter

LONDON, May 15 (WP) -Brian Walden is one of the ablest and most respected parliamentarians in the British Labor party. A gifted analyst, he appears frequently on television, discussing British and American politics with equal skill.

The Guardian recently revealed that Mr. Walden has been receiving £5,000 (about $12,800) a year from the National Bookmakers Association. Mr. Walden signed the contract as a consultant two years ago when he was in the middle of a successful fight to protect the bookmakera' worth more than £800 million a year-from the threat ened competition of a state betting agency.

There is nothing illegal in Mr. Walden's arrangement. He : observed to the letter the House of Commons rule and openly deciared his new financial interest at the time he signed with the bookles. He took up their cause originally from conviction, and no one has suggested that the money increased the intensity of Mr. Walden's fight on the bookies' behalf. Nevertheless, the Guardian's report concluded, there "does seem to have been an error in judgment."

What has changed here, and sharply, is the climate of opinion, Deals recently regarded as entirely proper are now being examined as conflicts of interest.

Sudden Discovery The British media's sudden discovery of this phenomenon is striking some of the biggest names in both major parties and has touched off a remarkable rash of investigative journalism. Early last year, commercial television prepared a cautious documentary on John Poulson, an architect who won millions in government contracts by bribing officials.

The program was never shown. Poulson was ultimately jailed and sentenced to seven years on some of the corruption charges.

But about a week ago, commercial talevision presented a 30-minute feature on a Poulson contract. It explored pittlessly the efforts of Reginald Maudling to win for Poulson a Malta hospital job worth almost fle million, Mr. Mandling, a former Conservative chancellor of the Exchequer, home secretary and deputy leader of the Tory party, is still a member of Parliament.

FCC Asked to Bar Cross-Ownership Of Media in Cities

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP), -The Department of Justice today renewed its pleas that the Federal Communications Commission bar cross-ownership of newspapers, broadcast outlets and cable television within cities.

The FCC is receiving comment on whether it should rewrite current rules on cross-ownership. Commission action has been pending for some time. Justice Department had asked for the same action in 1971.

The latest Justice Department challenge to the cross-ownership said that the department is greatly concerned that the gov-crument maintain diversity of both advertising and opinion nutlets. "In view of the limited number of daily newspaper and television outlets in local markets and the preeminence of such media as sources of local information and advertising, the Department of Justice believes that the perpetua-tion of existing commonly-owned, co-located daily newspapers and television stations is inconsistent with the policies of the Communications Act and the anti-trust laws," the department said.

Plutonium Leak At Arms Factory Revealed by AEC

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP).

—The Atomic Energy Commission says that radioactive plutonium has leaked from its weapons factory in Miamisburg, Ohio, into canal near the factory gates. But it adds that preliminary evidence indicates that the leak caused no health problem.

There have been no abnormal levels of radioactivity detected in the air. water or vegetation about the laboratory site," the AEC said yesterday when disclosing the leakage, discovered during periodic testing.

The agency identified the plutonium as an isotype of plutonium-238, one of the most poisonous metals known.

Based on preliminary samples, the plutonium presents no health problems because it has been found in the sediments under water," the AEC said.

"We have no idea how the plutonium leaked out of the factory into the mud." said an AEC spokesman. This comes as a complete surprise."

Pope Voices 'Pain' About Divorce Vote

Speaking to a group of newlyweds at his weekly general audience, the Pope said he was aware that "a large majority of the beloved Italian people have spoken in favor of a law which admits a certain possibility of divorce.

Unfortunately, this is for us a cause of pain and astonish-ment," the Pope said. "Also because the dutiful solidarity of not a few members of the

U.S. Scientist's Theory

Cigarette Radiation Linked to Lung Cancer

By Ivan Goldman BOULDER, Colo., May 13 (WP). -A scientist here believes that the cancer-causing ingredient in cigarette smoking may be radiatico-not tars or nicotine.

Tiny, radioactive particles become imbedded in a smoker's lungs and build up over the years, until he is getting doses of radiation that compare with those of uranium miners, said Dr. Edward Martell, a chemist with the National Center for Atmospheric Research here. He will publish his findings in a forthcoming issue of Nature, the British scientific journal. His theory is supported by a co-researcher, Dr. Edward Radford, a physician and professor of environmental medicine at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

Dr. Martell estimated that it will take two or three years of research to pin down his theory. Ha already has devoted 15 months to the project.

So far, he has discovered that high temperatures in the tip of radioactive parlicles naturally present in the atmosphere can collect on the sticky hairs of tobacco leaves. The hairs are so small that they can be seen only under a microscope. Dr. Martell said it took two student assistants several mooths to gather five sets of 2,000 hairs for research.

recoiled from this concept." Institute Skeptical

The official position of the National Cancer Institute is that "the radiation theory is not supported by any evidence, so far." The institute is not researching radiation buildup, although it is spending $16.4 million a year on lung cancer research, Dr. Martell noted that the Atomic Energy Commission coosidered the amount of radiation found in rigarette smoke to be well below "safe" levels. It did not consider, he said, the possible cumulative effects in the lungs.

In a smoker's lungs. Dr. Martell believes, thousands of particles of lead and polonium gather over the years in tiny clusters, and a long-time smoker is still being bombarded with radiation caused by cigarettes smoked years before.

Studies Backdate Existence Of Humans in North America

SAN DIEGO, MAJ 15 (AP).-A group of scientists said yesterday that fossil studies show man may have existed in the New World 50,000 years ago, almost 30,000 years earlier than previously believed.

The researchers said that a study of human fossils found between 1920 and 1935 along the southern California coast shows "a new chapter in the story of man, indicating that man existed in the New World at least 50,000 years ago.

Their conclusion disputes the common theory that man first appeared on the North American continent about 30,000 years ago by migrating across the Bering Sea over a land bridge of the Ice Age.

Dr. Jeffrey Bads, of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, developed a dating technique used to examine the bones first believed to be only 7,500 years old.

Dr. George Carter, a geography professor at Texas A & M who bas studied archaeological sites in the San Diego area for years, asked Dr. Bads to date the booes, which have been stored for four or five decades in San Diego.

The fossils include a skull, jawbone, ribs and other human bones found by the late Malcolm Rogers, a Scripps archaeologist. The skeletal remains were discovered near what now is Solana Beach, Del Mer and La Jolla in San Diego County, Leguns Beach in Orange County and the Baldwin Hills area of Los Angeles.

A skull found near Del Mar was dated back 48,000 years and another, found near La Jolla, at 44,000, Dr. Bada said. This com-pared to a dating of 26,000 years for the so-called Los Angeles man, previously believed to be the oldest fossil found in North America. In an interview, Dr. Bada said

The police said Mrs. Sebanne bought the baby for 5.000 francs ($1,045) from his real mother, Francine Tousch, because she feared her husband would abandon her if she did not have a baby. She then arranged to have the infant spirited away from the maternity home, the police said. They said the husband believed the child was his.

Marchais Sees Unrest If Giscard Wins

PARIS. May 15 (AP) .- Georges Marchals, secretary-general of the Franch Communist party, said today that the election of Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing as President could plunge France into "a grave social confrontation which we do not desire for our country."

The latest opinion poll. published by the mass circulation newspaper France-Soir, indicated that Mr. Giscard d'Estaing and the Communist-backed Socialist leader, François Mitterrand, were running neck-and-neck in voter sentiment ebout this Sunday's runoff election. Each received those intending to vote, the paper said, while 13 percent of those polled were undecided whether they would vote. Mr. Marchais told a news conference in Paris that Mr. Giscard d'Estaing would not keep his "demagogic election promises," leaving those who believed him deeply disappointed.

"The reaction of the French voters duped in this way would undoubtedly be very sharp." Mr. Marchals declared. "This creates a risk of grave social confrontation which we do not wish for our country," he said.

He said that the Communist party would be content with six or seven ministerial posts in a Mitterrand cabinet—about onethird of the total-and would not even demand that they should be key posts. He accused Health Minister Michel Ponlatowski, one of Mr. Giscard d'Estaing's top supporters, of "a flagrant lie" in claiming that the Communists would seek all the key ministries under Mr. Mitterrand, including defense and foreign affairs.

The "danger" of Communist participation in the government is one of Mr. Giscard d'Estaing'e main election arguments.

Sudanese Abandon Socialism For Saudis' Free Enterprise "When I went to the Sudan,

KHARTOUM: the Sudan, May 15 (AP) -After five years of uneasy rule President Guafar Numeri has abandoned revolutionary socialism for a new brand of pragmatic development. Conservative Saudi businessmen preaching free enterprise now work alongside Chinese Communists in an attempt to reverse the downward slide of Africa's largest country and one of the world's poorest.

Gen. Numeiri, who five years ago counted the United States among his enemies and was dependent on the Soviet Enion for arms, now praises Washington as his chief source of aid and keeps the Russians at a distance.

The Egyptians, first regarded as revolutionary brothers and then dismissed as troublemakers, are again welcome in the Sudan. Only the Soviet Union, blamed for encouraging the 1971 Com-munist coup attempt, and Libya, which he accuses of trying to topple him, are not now con-sidered friends,

Paris Robbers Use 2 Hostages To Make Escape

PARIS, May 15 (AP).—Bank robbers bargained with the lives of seven hostages for a getaway car, then made good their escape and released the prisoners, police reported today.

The robbers, reported as being two or three, held two adults and five children prisoner in a house, then took a mother and child along on a frantic escape, chased by police.

They gave pursuers the slip and released the mother and ber 11-year-old son near a police station in the suburbs of Paris.

An alarm had gone off during the robbery, and the bandits ran out of the bank, chased by a squad of police. The men holed up in a house and demanded a getaway car. The mother came to the door of the building and pleaded with police to "do something for my children in danger." She said the bandits had alloved her to speak to the policemen. Authorities decided to provide

Oil Payments Danger

The recent move by the Italian government to curb nonessential imports is a warning signal that the world energy crisis is far from over and may be entering a new and more dangerous phase. The payments imbalances set off by last year's fourfold increase in Mideast oil prices are beginning to register.

All the industrial countries have agreed repeatedly to accept their share of the $65-hillion "oil deficit" expected this year. recognizing that uttempts by individual countries to reduce their own deficitswhether by trade, monetary or domestic economic policies other than energy conservation—would merely off-load it onto others. But good resolutions are one thing; what is less plentiful is the political stability, steady nerves, financial credit and sense of community essential for a government to juggle unprecedented deficits.

So far, the two governments that have broken their pledged word have been those most dependent on Mideast cil and, thus, most vulnerable. France tried to get ahead of an approaching deficit in January by devaluing the franc, to brake imports and spur exports. Fortunately, that did not trigger a wave of competitive devaluations. thanks to the more responsible behavior, and better prospects, of other industrial nations. Italy, facing an $8-billion payments deficit, has imposed a special "tax" on about half of its imports through an import deposit system. Enormous pressures to follow suit are mounting elsewhere, as in Britain, which is now running a current account payments deficit of $10 billion a year.

The fundamental problem faced by the community of advanced nations is that the payments burden of the oil-price increase is falling very unevenly.

The United States and West Germany are selling more at higher prices to finance imports. Others, such as Britain and Italy, have been unable to expand their exports.

Moreover, the new Arab oil earnings that are being invested abroad naturally are going more to the strong than to the weak countries. The petrodollars deposited shortterm in Swiss and British banks are not proving to be equally available to all industrial countries. That helped precipitate Italy's new import curbs.

In any event, the unprecedented payments problem shead cannot begin to be solved by short-term loans, including the small, highinterest-rate loan facility the International Monetary Fund has proposed, useful as that would be. An international system of deferred debt repayment for huge sums of money is required and it can only be negotiated between the principal oil-importing and oilexporting nations.

By 1980, the oil-importing countries will have to borrow hundreds of billions of dollars from the oil producers-directly or through banking intermediaries—to pay for the oil they buy. The 12-nation Energy Coordinating Group set up by the Fehruary Washington conference is studying solutions to this and other critical energy problems. But the head of steam behind this Americanled enterprise in February has evaporated into the spring sunshine as the oil shortage has eased.

Concrete proposals for stopgap monetary measures by the industrial countries and long-term arrangements to he negotiated with the oil producers are needed now. Italy's import curbs are a dire warning that time is running out.

that "corruption, malfeasance and wrongdoing" in Washington were "hammer blows to the confidence the American people have placed in their government." Later the same day, Mr. Ford tempered his strong language by saying, ". . . the President, I hope, will survive, because I think he's innocent."

A day later, after meeting with Mr. Nixon, the Vice-President denied that he and the President had discussed Republican defections; but the next day he said that he had told the President that he was not among those "trying to jump off the ship of state." When asked if he still supported the President as fully as he had when he was named Vice-President in the fall, Mr. Ford replied, "I think the answer is yes."

Everyone is entitled to an occasional change of mind, but Mr. Ford's variety of tones and multiple changes of course during his six months as Vice-President are of particular interest because he is the most imminently presidential Vice-President in American history. Some samplings from his record are instructive.

Mr. Ford reportedly expressed concern that the Watergate crisis might have weakened President Nixon's negotiating posture with the Soviet Union. After that report was published, the Vice-President shifted the hurden of his concern about hargaining power to the Senate because of its rejection of a request for additional funds for Vietmam.

Early misgivings about the Vice-President'e record of dogged partisanship were hardly allayed by his thumping assault on

Vice-President Ford asserted the other day Nixon critics at the Farm Burean convention in January. Soon thereafter Mr. Ford swung to public admonitions to the White House to be more forthcoming with its evidence.

Eyebrows were raised at the White House and around the country when the Vice-President's ruminations about the shape of a Ford cabinet were published in The New Republic. Later, of course, yet another in the endless stream of clarifications issued from his office.

The New York Times recognizes that Mr. Ford's situation is sensitive and his roles are complex. He is a potential president. He is also his party's chief cheerleader at its most cheerless time. He must serve as a condult and as a prodder of the grass roots as well as of Capitol Hill for a beleaguered President to whom he is beholden.

Nevertheless, the pressures of the Ford vice-presidency are not nearly so heavy or so complex as those he would encounter in the presidency; and it is Mr. Ford's ability to sustain those burdens that concerns the country. The nation needs less a rudderless tongue than it does a sense of measured indgment in the White House. Mr. Ford himself described the times well in saying that these are "singular days in our national history-days when emotions run deep and strong, days when doubt and suspicion are widespread. . "

Healing can only begin when the people gain a sense that their potential president can wrest durable priorities from tempestuous events and chart a consistent course based upon principled reflection.

A Defeat for the Clergy

The result of the divorce referendum in Italy reveals the dwindling influence of the Roman Catholic Church in thut country. Some of the clergy intervened in the debate in a manner that was anything but helpful to the church's cause. But aside from that, even those who voted against the retention of divorce mostly did so mainly from conservative conviction and a desire to halt the process of institutional disintegration on modern society. . . .

-From the Neue Zürcher Zeitung (Zurich). * * *

It is difficult to avoid the suspicion that the referendum may prove a watershed in postwar Italian politics. In the first place, it marks a serious rebuff to the Catholic church. Secondly, it could mark a turningpoint in the place of the Communists in Italian politics. But a campaign which was won (despite the deliberately misleading phrasing of the question) on a platform of civil liberty and individual conscience must represent a major challenge to the quasifeudal structure of traditional Italian pol-

Situation in Mozambique

The whites in Mozambique depend for security on the Portuguese Army, which (being half black) could even turn against them, and they can only hope for eventualities that would allow them to join forces with South Africa and Rhodesia. Guerrilla intransigence might cause the army to fight on, in which case the area south of the Zambezi could perhaps hecome an adjunct of South Africa. But Lisbon's anxiety to end the fighting, and looming international complications, may prevent any such development, As Gen. Gomes has suggested in Beira, the whites may well simmer down and cooperate with the inevitable like colons

NEW YORK-A rumor that ex-President Grover Cleveland had died unexpectedly while fishing in the Ohio River spread over the country like wildtire last night, causing no end of commotion and sorrow. The rumor finally turned out to be just that, started in Chicago. When a reporter found the ex-President fishing in Lake Michigan and asked him about the story, Mr. Cleveland replied, "You can see for yourself that it's about."

WASHINGTON-Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana is a reminder that there are still a lot of steady decent folk around here watching the store. Everybody in Washington is not crazy; it just seems that way.

Room 8-208 in the Capitol Building, Mike's hideaway, is as plain and calm as a country lawyer's office. The door is always open. Inside, no fancy elegant people or heroic portraits of the majority leader. Some old amiable cartoons, and a big picture of Jack Kennedy throwing out the first pitch on opening day, with Mike in the background, as usual. An atmosphere of cheerful and relaxed efficiency, coffee perking on the shelf and cookies

Mike is sad but not pessimistic about the present mess in Washington. He thinks it is wrong to press the President to resign, but he understands why the Republican leader in the Senate, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, condemned the President's private Watergate conversations, and why the Republican leader in the House, John Rhodes, suggests that resignation has to be considered, That's Mike's way: He tries to understand everybody's problems.

Pressuring

But pressuring the President to resign, he insists, would be un-fair, evade rather than resolve the moral and legal issues. Give the President not only the presumption of innocence, he says, but every opportunity to have his lawyers in the House and Senate to argue his case, cross-examine witnesses, and appear on the floor of the House and Senate, if he chooses, to defend himself personally.

Let the system work, says Mike, It is not only the President, but the Congress and the Constitution that are on trial. But—and here he is very tough—let it work all the way-not halfway. Take the President ut his word. Give him every conceivable opportunity to state his case, all the lawyers he wants to challenge the evi-dence and all the time he needs to do so. But, he insists, "Let's have the evidence."

Mansfield has a sense of pity about human folly and is very generous about the personal aspeets of this tragedy-and he sees not in partisan terms. He is beyond all personal ambition now, even beyond his own party's battles. For example, he not only sees Watergate and Vietnam in moral terms, but also Chappaquiddick and Sen. Kennedy, and admires Kennedy as a good senator but is against him as the presidential nominee of his party

So there must be something right about a system that puts a decent man like Mansfield in a position of party leadership, and something consoling in the thought that people in the House and the Senate, worried about what to do in this crisis, come to room S-208 to talk out their anxieties, and seek Mike's quiet counsel.

Mansfield, if I hear him right, is looking beyond the present turnoil in Washington. He is airsid that the nation would be deeply divided for a long time if President Nixon were forced to resign by political or newspaper

He thinks the whole Watergate scandal could have been avoided if the President had been open and trusted the system, and thinks we've had enough secrecy, and enough deception. The Pres-ident has asked for a fair trial under the Constitution, so let it begin with all the relevant facts out plain and clear.

Simple Approach

great weight here, for the importance of Mansfield is that his colleagues in both parties and in both Houses believe in him. They watch him in S-208 and on the floor of the Senate, struggling to be fair, opposing the President on troops in Europe, opposing his ing for the thing he thinks is right, even if this means oppos-he doesn't want it, maybe because he doesn't want it. Others here are jumping to conclusions. calling for resignation, shifting and jumping around. But Mansfield waits. He is in no hurry. He goes on with the business of the Senate. He won't even talk about whether he has made any preparations for a trial of the President. "That's not before us yet."

This simple approach carries ing his own party.

So he has power, even though he says.

He may be right or wrong on this procedure, but he has the influence of integrity, and in the end, that may be what the controversy is all about.

Claire Sterling From Rome:

The most striking point this [divorce] referendum has made is that Catholic crusades of the 1948 kind will probably never be possible in Italy again.

ROME-It isn't often that voters in any country have taught politicians as stunning a lesson as the Italians did in their referendum on divorce last Sun-day. By the time they went to the polls, they had been exposed to some of the shabblest political confidence tricks anybody has tried to pull here since the postwar republic was founded. They have confounded everybody by refusing to be guiled.

The question before them was supposed to be whether they did or did not want to repeal Italy's three-year-old divorce law. But the question as actually put to them by the anti-divorce lobby was whether they did or did not want a Bolshevik government, free love, flaming adultery, ram-pant nymphomania, starving grass widows and weeping children, homosemal marriages, and wives running off with housemalds for a leablan fling—this last cited in dramatic warning to a male Sicilian andiance by no less a per-sonage than the Christian Demo-crats' general secretary, Amintore Fantani. In the end, though, the voters concluded that what they were in fact supposed to be voting about was simply whether they did or did not want to repeal the divorce law. Since the law was demonstrably no menace to home and family here—only 66,641 couples have gotten divorced so far, three-quarters of them after being separated for more than 20 years-59 percent of the Italian voters decided to keep it.

Even Sicily

The majority was made up not just of sophisticated northerners and city dwellers but also of presumably benighted southerners and peasants. Party lines were crossed as never before in the republic's history. Nearly every stronghold of the Romen Catholic Church, not to speak of the ruling Christian Democratic party and its sole allies in this cam-paign—the neo-Fascists—went to pieces. Even Sicily, a backwardlooking island if there ever was one, gave 51 percent of its vote to uphold divorce.

fble that Catholic politicisms and the church itself should have risked such a test. Reportedly the Vatican didn't care much for the idea. The decision to go shead with the referendum is said to have been Fantani's. By all accounts, he was depending on a colossal mobilization of the Catholic clergy to deliver an absolute majority for the Christian Democrats, as it did in 1948: the first and last one they ever

Fanfant's defeat, and it is shat-tering, has come first of all at 600 the hands of dissident fellow-Catholics in his own Christian Democratic party, Catholic Ac-tion, the Catholic trade unions. and all levels of the Vatican hierarchy: The most striking point this referendum has made is that Catholic crusades of the 1948 kind will probably never be possible in Italy again. Apart from the deep cracks in Catholic ranks, the attitude of many million lay voters in this referendum shows how enormous-ly Italy has changed in this last quarter of a century. For one reason or another—inertia, igno-rance, cynicism, dislibusion, indif-ference—these once compliant and predictable voters used to be the establishment politician's delight, It is another and rarer kind of politician, the kind who has always wished Italian voters would show just the sort of gumption they have just shown, who is delighted now.

Obviously it was more than the relatively narrow issue of divorce what stirred these voters to make their declaration of independence. Everything that has been going wrong in Italy for so long has been going much wrong-er faster lately: The postal ser-vice which hasn't worked for nearly a year, the courts grinding to a halt, unbearable and unrelieved urban pressures, ap-palling housing conditions and shocking real estate speculation. egregious corruption in high (and low) places, and above all a steady, dizzying intolerable rise in prices: While Italy's politicians were running after "yes" or "no" yotes on divorce this menth, spending $100 million in the process, the country continued to inch inexorably towards economic

State of Shock

It is too soon to know whether the Italians have forced their establishment to a more serious consideration of all these prob-lems, by last Sunday's and Monday's declaration of independence or indeed, to know what if anything they may have accomplishdemocratic right long since accepted in the rest of the civilized world. They appear to have demonstrated that they are neither politically nor mentally retarded. They have evidently opted for this century over the last, where social customs are concerned. They seem to have sent their Christian Democratic rulers into a healthy state of shock. For the moment, they are immensely

How long will that last? Have they really convinced their leaders in Rome that they are a moture, independent, democratic force to be reckoned with? Catered to? Cared for? What wonders may not be in store in Italy if that were true?

Using the White House Jesuit

By William F. Buckley Jr.

NEW YORK—Is there no limit to the weapons Richard Nixon is prepared to use to defend himself? He began by telling us that the tapes would speak for themselves, and would fully exonerate him. A week later (May 9) he propped up a Jesuit theologian to pronounce the tapes as fine examples of Christian morality, and to describe their principal author as the embodiment of Christian virtue and high statesmanship.

Here is what I would like someone please to explain to me. Why is Mr. Nixon's judgment so awry these days? I write within minutes of reading the remarks of the Rev. John McLaughlin, Jesuit priest and presidential side, and I-who ran for public office only once, and achieved 13 percent of the vote-know as certainly as that the sun will rise tomorrow that this venture will bring yet further discredit to President Nixon-and discredit to Father

--Letters-Haig's Stance

Recent comment by Gen. Haig. White House chief of staff, on Watergate suggests that our people might as well accept the facts as stated by President Nixon and drop the whole matter.

However, the average American citizen believes that participation by any President in the unlawful activities of a Watergate is, and always should be, unpardon-arousing the anger of many who care deeply that we should not trifle with men of God, and who will recall that Mr. Nixon has at least a passive weakness for that kind of thing. For many years, Billy Graham was always there to suggest, however faintly, that God is a middle-class Republican. And when Mr. Nixon went to a church service in Key Biscavne to give thanks for the cease-fire in South Victnam, he suffered himself to be described by the local pastor in terms that would have embarrassed St. John of the Cross.

The presidential presence is said to be altogether over-awing. But Father McLaughlin is not a country preacher. To become a Jesuit requires 13 years of hard study in the seminary. (Father McLaughlin should have taken the 14th year.) And after that, he served as an editor of the Jesuit weekly, America, which for a while was given to loosing thunderbolts at any Catholic who expressed any reservation over any papal inflection given in any encyclical

During the 1900s, many Jesuits, for from tolling in the vineyards of ultramontanism, became selfconsciously, not to say obstreperously, independent, the hero of the group in question being of course their fellow Jesuit, Pather Daniel Berrigan, Father Mc-Laughlin then ran for senator from Rhode Island against John Pastore, which suggests his inclination to lost causes; and now one detects the accents of yore, the only difference being that Richard Nixon is taking the place of the Pope; in which respect, there is, once again, the old credibility gap. Father McLaughlin appealed to course he is correct—we should be guided by charity. But charity does not require the Congress of Mr. Nixon will succeed in the United States and the American people to maintain Richard Nixon as President of the United States. In my judgment charity might properly have been invoked against disbarring Spiro Agnew once he was removed from the vice-presidency; but charity has nothing to do with keeping us from giving to the transcripts the kind of attention that Mr. Nixon asked us to give to them-from dwelling on the contradictions, remarking the selfishness of their concern, expressing a not uncosmopolitan dismay at the quality of the discourse. The only thing that charity absolutely requires is that no further analysis be made of the remarks of Father McLaughlin

What is Mr. Nixon, the shrewd political analyst, saying to himself, as he drops bomb, after bomb, after bomb? Did he believe that a paid consultant wearing a Roman collar could transubstanthe virtue of charity, and of tiate the tapes from barracksroom discussions into sacrosanct deliberations of a man identified by Father McLaughlin as "the greatest moral leader of the last third of this century"? What is finally surprising about it is that Mr. Nixon isn't really that had. The tronscripts are not really that bad. What is bad in that the transcripts should have been released at all, and what is bad is that Mr. Nixon actually believed they would lighten his burden. And, now, that Mr. Nixon either believes what Father Mc-Laughlin says, in which case he has completely lost touch with reality; or else he doesn't believe it, but he thinks it will work :which case he has completely lost touch with reality. And if he has indeed lost touch, what is the most charitable thing the American people could hope for?

VISION NOUVELLE

BALLET IN HAMBURG U.S. Choreographer's Rich View of Dance

By David Stevens

HAMBURG (IHT).—John Neumeier, the American choreographer in his first season as the Hamburg State Opera's ballet director, has just given notice of an ambitious and richly elaborated vision of dance as a theatrical spectacle one that seems likely to give dance a strong claim to a bigger share of the audience in what already is a great theatrical

"Meyerbeer/Schumann," Neu-meier's first original, full-evening ballet since transferring himself, his dancers and a nucleus of repertory from Frankfurt, defies easy classification. It is a phantasmagoria of musical-historical-literary associations on the worlds of two composers of the romantic age Giacomo Meyerbeer, who had dreadful creative hangups but whose now-moribund operas were the rage of his time, and Robert Schumann, whose music lives but whose tangled personal life ended in mental derange-

The spectacle begins with Caruso's recording of "O Paradise" from Meyerbeer's "L'Africana" and ends with the Adaglo from Schumann's Second Symphony, and in between employs scores by two contemporary composers. It uses the recorded voices of two actors nttering the words of the two main characters. It requires the services of a conductor who doubles as a pianist and a com-poser who doubles as a conductor, and what must be the entire troupe of dancers, one of whom has to produce a few notes on the piano that occupies the center rear of the stage for the work's two hours. The dance ranges from abstract to representational, and its vocabulary over a wide clas-sical-modern spectrum.

If all this sounds like an indigestible mixture of disparate elements, well, there were times when the connecting thread ran thin and the symbolic-literary baggage heavy. But the compen-sations were in the right place. with an ample amount of expressive and inventive choreography when it counted

Whils Caruso sang and the actors spoke (Schumann's criticism of "Les Huguenots" and Meyerbeer's pained reaction), Max Midinet (Meyerbeer) and Fran-cols Klaus (Schumann) did barre exercises, then wandered around the stage dressing them-selves—Meyerbeer with an instinct for flamboyance and avidly collecting laurel wreaths as he went; Schumann with irritated indecisiveness. Then the stage was filled with Meyerheer and his gallery of operatic characters, the composer battling with his creative blocks as his figures acted out their witless plots with extravagant gestures until their whole world collapsed of its own hollowness. The effective score for this section was Günter Bialas's "Meyerbeer Paraphrases," which succeeded somehow in being both respectful of Meyerbeer's most familiar melodies, while using changed instrumentation and interrupted climares for alienation effect. Christoph Eschenbach conducted this part fluently, then for the interlude that began the second part of the spectacle he moved to the plano on stage for a sensitively nuanced performance of Schumann's "Kinderszenen," for which Neumeier devised an abstract ballet, classical yet full of childlike hesitations, exuberance and unpredictability.

Then Wilhelm Killmayer took over on the podium to conduct his own new score—characterised mainly by long overlapping phrases in the strings and outbursts of percussion-while the dancers, moving in sinuously suggestive, intertwined groupings, gave choreographic form to Schumann's life through the figures of the composer, Clara, Clara's forbidding father, Brahms, Schumann's mother and the Florestan and Eusebius of his own split

Neumeier returned to abstraction for an epilogue, but this time with the dance being shaped by the long span of the symphonic Adaglo, whereas the 'Kindersze-nen' dances were for small groups, changing in number and character with each "scene." The whole had continuity and variety, but the construction was sufficiently loose to suggest that "Meyerbeer" and "Schumann" could easily be performed separately-in fact, in next season's

Staatsoper prospectus, they are listed separately—and even that their own. Also, some parts made heavy presumptions of the audience's familiarity with Meyer-beer's operas and Schumann's life. But, for a heartening amount of time, it was dance that carried the dramatic load—and aroused interest in Neumeier's future projects, Marco Arturo Marelli's set—s sheet of tulle lifted from the floor to become a stage roof and light absorber-was effective, and Sil-via Strahammer's costumes were colorful. The dancing was at a uniformly high level, and there was no skimping on the recorded voices, for Will Quadflieg (Schumann) has been one of the mainstays of the famous Deutsches Schauspielhaus here, while Boy Gobert (Meyerheer) is the current

HAMBURG OPERA IN ITALY

'The Magic Flute'—Major Event for Florentine Festival

By William Weaver

FLORENCE, May 15 (IHT).—The second major musical evect of Maggio Musicale, Florence's spring festival, opened last night: This was a superbly realized, beautifully paced performance of Mozart's "Magic Flute." brought here by the Hamburg State Opera. Unfortunately, the visit of the Hamburg company will be brief; after three performances of the Mozart work, they are leaving. Once they were brought this far, it would have been interesting to see some of the other productions in their large and often unconventional

But instead of complaining about what wasn't given, one should praise what was. The company came complete, with chorus and orchestra; and from the first bars of the overture it was clear that it would be a coherent, stylish, poodered (but far from ponderous) reading of the score. The conductor, Horst Stein, kept everything virtually at chamber-level, making the prankish scenes light-hearted and the solemn pages taut, intense. Everything flowed easily, as if spontaneously; and there was—as there rarely is io Italian operahouses—a true sense of a team, a troupe, playing for one another as much as for the auditoria.

The coherence of the cast makes the singling out of individual The concrence of the cast makes the singing out of individual members invidious, and yet it is impossible not to underline the stately, noble Sarastro of Hans Sotin: the tender Pamina of Lucia Popp; the sweet, truly sung Tamino of Werner Hollweg. In the part of Papageno, so often over-hammed, Ude Krekow—in a Harpo Mark get-up—was youthful and engaging, abetted by his pretty Papagena. Butta Papage Thick! The three boxe was trucking payer cities. Jutta-Renate Ihloti. The three boys were touching, never cute.

When it was new, some time ago, this Peter Ustinov staging of "The Magic Flute" came in for some criticism. It is hard now to see why; it is surely respectful of the text and faithful to the music, and yet inventive. Some details of the sets by Jean-Denis Malcles might be improved perhaps (the fire and water tests were too tame), but his costumes are handsome, a positive contribution to a thoroughly enjoyable experience.

Met's Hoving Sees No Cultural Slump in United States

By Robert J. Donovan NEW YORK-It is not hard to find signs that culture in the United States, in these days of inflation, corruption and mass production, has fallen on evil

"The Exercist" is making millions while the Metropolitan Opera has been forced to shorten the 1974-75 season by at least six weeks because of costs. Neither a novel nor a play was found worthy of a Pulitzer prize this year.

Has culture become a victim of high prices, vulgarity, pornography, violence, over-population and crumbling tradition?

No-in the opinion of Thomas Hoving, the controversial director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, "The strengths in the arts are not so much declining as shifting," Mr. Hoving said.

Highest Quality

"Not too many years ago 36 Broadway theaters were flourishing. With the works of such playwrights as Tennessee Williams, Arthur Miller and others, you had a never-ending procession of things that were the highest quality—even experimental things.

"Now that is not so true," Mr. Hoving went on. Theater people get out their pocket calculators and say let Papp do it, let somebody else do it. To solve the problem of inflation they renovated theaters, put in vastly more seats. This caused public discomfort, and they were in a vicious circle, with the whole environment becoming a money thing.

"That generated Off-Broadway and off-Off-Broadway where one would think the slack would be picked up, but it hasn't, curiously mough. I guess the big etage is still very important.

"The Kennedy Center [in Washington, D.C.] is the one place in the country that is really doing a quite spectacular job. The critics condemned its architecture, said a town like Washington wouldn't go for it. But it is the only one with full bookings, making its own way financially." the museum director pointed out. "It is putting on the openings of the top plays in the country right

Transformed Theater

"It has transformed not only Washington but quality theater. It was the first to put on Moon for the Misbegotten,' Bernstein's Mass' and 'Jumpers,' a really exciting play."

I had seen a great performance of "Good News" at the Kennedy Center and said that I hoped t would get to New York "There you have it - right there!" Mr. Hoving exclaimed.

That is the leitmoth of this par-happening. You hope it comes to New York! People used to hope that a New York show would go on the road. At 43, Mr. Hoving heads one of the world's major museums after an earlier career that included archaeological excavations in Sicily, educational programs on television and a period as commissioner of parks in New York. His management of the Metropolitan Museum has caused controversy, but his views are as strong as those of his critics. Success in Sculpture

"I don't think our culture is declining," he said. "Painting, I think, has a problem. Whether decline. I am not sure, but the search is not leading to the discovery in painting somehow. I think sculpture is not declining. It is a highly successful expression of what we are. It is totally unideological or un-fad. Look at 19th-century U.S. sculpture and look at today's, with its great freedom and release.

"Despite commercial restrictions, architecture is doing spectacular things, partly because of the new materials that architects mesh steel are things the Romans would just loved to have had.

have to work with, such as the new capability of steel. Net and

More and more you hear that the true art form of today is the film," Mr. Hoving said, "It is a wonderful statement, but I suspect it is not true. I think the reason is in film there is a builtin ephemera. This strengthens it at the moment but then it tends to become a little bit shaky, so I don't think film is in the great position of strength that people are trying to indicate.
"I think the whole porn thing illustrates part of this too. I am talking about film that is trying to be more than The Exorcist. But film doesn't click unless it has explicit language, explicit sex and perhaps some form of vio-

Mark of Decline "My feeling is that this jugger-nant of sex is a mark of decline," Mr. Hoving continued. "They try to explain that this is a great freedom, a getting away from taboos, but I am not convinced by that because in the vast per-centages of cases it takes this raw commercial tinge.

"A lot of people shrick about TV, but I have a feeling that TV is greater than the great Hollywood epoch. We remember the great old movies, but below them

the support level was not so great -the movies that carried the business. The sludge that was given to us when we were growing up was more linear even than TV. The effect of TV has been extraordinarily important in education. People without formal education have gained a great deal of knowledge watching TV.

"When you get a fine series it has a laser impact. Not just the Public Broadcasting Service. There have been spectacular things the networks have put on. Not all 'I Love Lucy' reruns. You go to TV in other countries-France, for example. They don't have T Love Lucy reruns because the set only comes on at 11 a.m. and goes off at something like 9 at night. [Editor's Note: On weekdays. Prench TV goes off the air around

"Then you have this curious phenomenon of things that could only be on TV and that are ex-cellent... War and Peace' was a TV series that was the equivalent of the 19th-century novel," Mr.

Hoving commented. "I see many glorious oreas th which our culture is deing anything but declining."

Expo '74—Pint-Sized World's Fair in Spokane

By James P. Sterba

SPOKANE (NYT). - Expo 74. Spokane's pint-sized world's fair on the theme of environment has been attracting some 20,000 people a day since it open-ed last week.

On 50 acres of downtown riverfront and two small islands, there are 11 national pavilions, dozens of company exhibits, a permanent city opera house, an amusement park, food and souvenir stands singers, bands, handicrafters, folk artists, flowers and 2,700 young

Richard J. Barnhart, a 36year-old walking encyclopedia on international expositions, calls it a "jewel box fair." Some conservationists call it a disgraceful commercial sellout

But most visitors interviewed at random appear to agree with Oscar Indal, of Beaverton, Ore. "There's not too much here about the environment I didn't know before, but it's a real nice fair," he said.

Messares

Visitors find displays that range from sobering messages on man's mutilation of nature to sales pitches for recreational vehicles. An exhibit on vanishing species of animals, sponsored by Spokane County, for example, notes that "our record with the whale con-denns us," while at the Ford Motor Company pavillon one learns that "outdoor pleasure and enjoyment are provided with luxury and comfort in this 1974 Mercury Montego MX Villager station wagon."

An Afro-American pavilion concentrates on black culture and achievement while the Mormon exhibit stresses the need to eradicate moral decay.

Slides, movies, photos and posters abound, but most visitors said the highlight of the U.S. exhibit was a 23-minute film, starring actors Chief Dan George and James Whitmore, shown on a movie screen six stories high and nine stories wide. It begins with moving aerial views of Grand Canyon that make viewers feel they are on a dizzying airplane A chairlift ride over the fair-

Expo visitors and officials have given mixed reviews to the 27 commercial exhibitors, Hardly myone knows, for example, that the fair's grassy outdoor thenier was sponsored by the Beeing Corporation, while the commercial message in Bell Telephone's pavilion is hard to miss.

The energy pavilion, set up by oil, coal and electric companies. shows in photos, graphs and slides the problem of supplying fuel but not the profits in doing so. Coal is labeled "the black fuel with a silver lining," but the problems of strip mining are not discussed

There was little improvement to be seen in the critical trade and current account balances, however.

Although Japanese exports, including a sharp increase in ship deliveries, jumped 49 percent from a year earlier to $4.16 billion in April, imports, mainly reflecting higher oil prices, sarged 93 percent to $4,54 billion.

This left a trade deficit for April of $380 million, a slight deterioration from March'e $376million deficit and a blg turnaround from a $480-million sur-

Dollar Rallies In Europe

LONDON, May 15 (AP-DJ) .-The dollar rose very sharply on foreign exchange markets today smid unconfirmed reports that the U.S., West German and Swiss central banks had reached agreement to prevent the dollar from declining too far against the deutsche mark and Swiss franc. The dollar rose to 2.4520 DM ed at its lowest level in almost the Swiss franc, rising to 2.883 from 2.797 yesterday.

One dealer said reports that central banks would intervene to support the dollar caused widespread purchases of dollars to close out short positions. He added that there was little evidence that central banks actually supported the dollar, but that late selling of marks from New York suggested that the New York Federal Reserve Bank might be intervening. The dollar also rose to 2.5850 guilders from 2.5135. It is against the French franc It rose joint support, he said. "As you can see, the rumors alone are doing the trick. Why, then, should we intervene?" he

U.K. Companies to Include Inflation in Their Accounts

LONDON, May 15 (AP-DJ) .--A new, provisional, standard of accounting aimed how inflation has affected corporate earnings was publishcd today by the Accounting Steering Standards

The new standard applies to all companies in Britain with a etock exchange listing and is recommended to all other companies. It applies to accounting periods beginning on, or after. June 30 and is expected to sharply reduce the size of profits reported. The initiative is "the most important advance in accounting in our generation." said Kenneth Wright, president of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales. "It transcends in importance the consolidated accounts which were first publicly discussed" in 1932, he said. The provisional statement is based on a draft which was issued for comment by the ASSO in January 1973. It is to be converted into a full standard after the publication of a report by a committee, known the Sandlands Committee. which has been formed by the government to inquire into inflation accounting. If necessary, the provisional standard will be modified in light of the committee's report Under the provisional standard, companies are being asked to give shareholders, in addition to their basic historical accounts. a supplementary statement in terms of the value of the pound at the end of the period to which the accounts relate. This will illustrate tha impact of inflation on the company's results.

The provisional standard has been approved by the councils of the participating bodies of ASSC
—the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales ln association with the Instituta Chartered Accountants of Scotland, the Institute of Char-

Association of Certified Accountants and the Institute of Cost and Management Accountants. Some major U.K. companies have already published inflationadjusted accounts as supplements in their annual reports.

Among the principal new material in the provisional standard as compared with the previously disclosed draft is the recommendation that inflation accounting be adopted in due course for interim accounts, 10-year summsries of corporate results and prof-

Surplus in Payments Narrows in Quarter

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP), —U.S. industrial output rose in April for the first time in five months, largely because of a recovery in auto production, the government reported today.

The increase of four-tenths of 1 percent showed that the nation's business recovery may be on target with government fore-casts. Industrial output declined three-tenths of 1 percent in March and six-tenths of 1 percent in February.

The administration has predicted that the steep first-quarter slids in the country's economy would flatten out in the second quarter and be followed by a resumption of economic growth after mid-year. Despite the April increase in production, the Federal Reserva Board's industrial production index etood at 124.7, which was still far below the high of 127.5 reached last November before the impact of the Arab oil embargo

Payments Surplus

The government also reported an $865-million surplus in the balance of payments for the first quarter of the year, a big decline from the surplus of $2.7 billion in the last quarter of 1973.

A major factor in the worsening payments position was the higher cost of foreign oil. The cost of oil imports rose 72 percent to $4.8 billion, while the quantity declined by 19 percent. But the report on industrial production indicated the worst of the economic slowdown resulting from the oil shortage may be over. Auto assemblies increased 14 percent in April to an annual rate of 7.5 million units, compared with a rate of 6.8 million units in March, the industrial production report sald.

Production of business equipment continued to increase and there also were advances in output of iron and steel mill products, the government report said. The payments balance figures wera on the "official reverve" basis, which measures the dollars accumulated by foreign central banks through their foreign exchange market dealings. The United Stales has a payments surplus on this basis when central banks abroad show a net increase in their total dollar holdings payments showed a deficit the first quarter, but this from the prior quarter and from earlier. The "net liquidity" balance showed a firstquarter shortfall of $544 million following a $1.13-billion deficit in the previous period. A year earlier, this measure of private as well as government dollar flowa registered a big $8.55-billion deficit.

Special Factors

Commerce Department said the first-quarter halances on both bases were influenced by several special developments, including changes in trade and financial transactions related to the Arah oil embargo, the removal of U.S. controls an capital outflows late in January, and changes in restrictions on capital inflows by several foreign coun-

official reserves transactions balance was adversely affected by a $2.4-billion shift in net inflows of liquid private capital as liquid assets held abroad by U.S. banks, agencies and branches of foreign banks in the United States rose sharply.

The merchandise trade surplus in the first quarter narrowed substantially to $290 million from $1.36 billion in the fourth quarter, reflecting the hefty rise in prices of imported oil in recent months. The trade figures, which are adjusted on a balance of pay-ments basis, ahowed exports of $23.38 billion in the first quarter and imports of $22.09 billion. Commerce Department also said business inventories in March rose a seasoni lly-adjusted

McCrory-Interstate Talks End

Talks involving acquisition of several store divisions of McCrory Corp. by Interstate Stores to be been terminated. The unsuccessful conconsider of the negotiations raises questions about the future of Interstate, a diversified retailer that on May 3 disclosed a loss of 860.6 million for the fiscal year ended Feb. 3. If the McCrory sale dai not go through, Sol Cantor, Interstate's chairman, said on May 3, "serious problems applied be created with respect to Interstate's ability to function as a going concern." A joint announcement says that "insurmountable probletts" had arisen because several institutional lenders could not agree on the restructuring of Interitate's long-term debt.

Oil Crisis Seen Altering Banking Theory

By Hobart Rowen WASHINGTON, May 15 (WP). -The real burden on the oilconsuming world caused by massive boosts in oil prices will be gradual rather than immediate because of the inability of the

oll-exporting countries to quickly increase their imports. Thus, according to Robert Solomon, deputy chairman of the International Monetary Fund's Committee of Twenty deputies and senior adviser to the Federal Reserve Board, "the real impact on the standard of living of the rest of the world will be miligat-

Mr. Solomon, who will resume full-time duties at the Fed after mid-year, said in a speech delivered in New York that the oilexporting countries, even those with more diversified economies, will develop large surpluses because it will take time to "increase their imports in line with their increased export earnings."

ter the time being will be paying nations develop the capacity to for their higher-priced oil with debt, rather than transferring goods and services. But the real effect cannot be rielayed forever, he stressed, and the deficits must be financedpreferably by coordinated moves in which countries try to divide un the debt burden equitably, and not try to shift il to each other. In finding ways of financing the debt-wnich could be in the neighborhood of $50 billion-Mr. Solomon said "it may become necessary to alter a number of conventional ways of timpking." For example, he said it may be necessary to set aside usual fears about financial institutions that borrow "short" and lend in the long term. He pointed out that funds placed by the oil-emporters in what are usually termed short-term assets (25 in Eurocurrency market: are likely to be held for a

Thus, the consuming nations long time, while the exporting absorb large imports At the same time, whatever form the borrowing by oil consumers takes, "the fact is that they are likely to be debtors for a long time . . .

"All this means that conventional fears about financial institutions borrowing short and lending long ought to be looked at and tempered in the light of the likely patterns over time of the balance of payments positions of oil consumers and oil exporters."

Conventional attitudes toward creditworthiness may have to be revised, as well, he declared, "as individual oil-importing countries go into debt to finance their unavoidable trade deficits." He pointed out that the consuming countries as a group will be able to repay their debts only when the oil-exporters are in a position to bny more goods from world markets.

Dow Index Drops 1.8

NEW YORK, May 15 (Reuters). -A report that Libya had reduced crude oil prices by about $3 a barrel touched off a brief rally on the New York Stock Exchange this afternoon, but it failed to offset earlier losses, and stocks closed lower on light turnover. For most of the session, the market had to cope with some of its old domestic problems-inflation and rising interest ratesalong with new tensions in the Middle East. Other factors tending to dis-courage investors included the continued slump in new car sales, and a Commerce Department report that the balance of payments surplus shrank in the first The Dow Jones industrial average was down more than 5 points in early trading, recovered to a small gain briefly and closed at 846.06, down 1.80 from the previous day. Declining issues led gains throughout the session, closing at about 825 to 510.

Volume totaled 11.24 million shares against 10.86 million yesterday. Automotive stocks were fractionally mixed despite a 28 percent drop in industry car sales in the first third of May.

Because Chemical bankers are also imaginative businessmen, they think beyond routine banking.

Different financial problems can't all be tackled in the same way. And they can't usually be solved by banking techniques alone. At Chemical Bank, our people have the same kind of imagination as successful businessmen. That's why so often our customers reshape projects they started with: our financial specialists open up entirely new horizons and find original, workable solutions. The sort that can't always be found in the pages of a banking manual.

Rapid decision-making.

Chemical Bank's solutions can be implemented right away because we realize that every moment lost can jeopardize the success of an enterprise. And our people not only have the same kind of imagination as successful businessmen, but the same freedom to make decisions, too. And that's vital to customers who want to make decisions and make them fast.

Effective world-wide execution.

Singapore, New York, or Rio de Janeiro. Chemical Bank can help you financially anywhere around the world through offices located in the strategic places. Our people constantly exchange information and experience with their colleagues all over the globe. They keep in touch with every little fluctuation in the market, so that they can help their customers as effectively as possible in whatever part of the world they re doing business.

Our world-wide offices.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY CALIFORNIA ASIATIC OIL COMPANY

(A SUBSIDIARY OF STANDARD OIL CO. OF CALIFORNIA)

The Government of the Libyan Arab Republic on February 11, 1974, announced the issuance of a decree whereby it purported to nationalize immediately all of the interests and assets in Libya of California Asiatic Oil Company ("Calasiatic") in relation to Concessions 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 51, 73, 83, 119, 120, 131, 132 and 133 in Libya. The Government of the Libyan Arab Republic had previously purported to nationalize 51% of Calasiatic's interests and assets in all of these concessions on September 1, 1973, an action publicly stated by the Government to be in retaliation for Calasiatic's refusal to accede to the Government's demands for transfer to it of interests in all of its concessions for an amount far less than their true value. The action by the Government on February 11 coincided with the opening of the Washington -Conference of principal oil consuming nations and was characterized in a Libyan Government press release as a "practical and decisive reply to President Nixon's message to Col. Moammar Gaddafi."

The Government of the Libyan Arab Republic has purported to transfer all of Calasiatic's interests and assets in Libya to the Libyan National Oil Corporation.

Calasiatic's rights to these concessions were acquired from the Libyan Government by Calasiatic and Texaco Overseas Petroleum Company jointly through Deeds of Concession granting these companies the exclusive right to explore for and to produce oil from the areas of Libya covered by these concessions and to export the oil. Crude oil is presently produced from two concessions:

Concession 47 crude oil is called "Sirtica Crude" and that produced from Concession 51 is called "Amna Crude."

These actions of the Government of the Libyan Arab Republic were discriminatory and arbitrary. As such, they are a clear violation of International Law as well as of contractual obligations of the Libyan Government which are provided by Libyan law. Calasiatre has protested the announced decrees and, in accordance with the concessions, has called for arbitration of the dispute arising from the Libyan Government's actions.

Calasiatic has also notified the Government of the Libyan Arab Republic that the Government's acts are wrongful and incapable of depriving the company of its rights.

Accordingly, the attention of all those who may be concerned with these developments, whether as purchasers of oil or otherwise, is drawn to the continuance of Calasiatic's rights with respect to crude oil produced from the above-mentioned concessions and products manufactured or derived therefrom. It is the intention of the company to assert those rights whenever and wherever necessary against those who infringe them.

Reviewed by John Rockwell

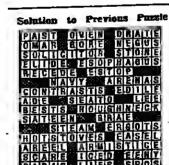

ROLLING STONE magazine has become an American institution, which might seem a little sad for a magazine born just seven years ago as the voice of the counter-culture. Yes, it is still published from San Francisco, and yes, it is still devoted to rock 'n' roll, sort of,

But now, it has a circulation of some 400,000 and an average thickness of 96 pages. A stable of literary heavy-weights (some nurtured from its own pages) con-tribute regularly, from Tom Wolfe to William Burroughs to Truman Capote to Hunter Thompson, Subject matter has long since reached beyond rock to include articles of general interest to rock audiences (mystical sects, dope) and even things they might be interested in (electoral politics).

What Rolling Stone really is is Jann Wenner's personal, private forum. Wenner founded the magazine, and since its inception he has endured or provoked a steady turnover of editors and writers. Part of this has to do with his own changing notions of what the magazine should be about-more or less music, more or less radical politics, more or less personality pieces about performers but mostly it has to do with his own Citizen Kane self-image, Wenner is a hip autocrat, and is cordially hated in some quarters, as all autocrats must

The basis of the magazine's success is still its coverage of rock, simply because rock is the music to which most literate sesthetically inclined nonmusicians listen. Rock in its raunchier forms may be the music of teenagers, and certainly latter-day Woodstocks like Watkins Glen are most important as occasions for youth to celebrate its sense of communality. But kids grow up, and from the start Rolling Stone has appealed to the FM-radio audience of rock: People who may listen to rock instead of so-called "serious" music, but who listen to it seriously.

As far as large numbers of professional people in their twenties and thirties are concerned, rock is today's music and music-despite the complaints of classical new-music boosters as they survey their empty halls-retains as strong a hold on people's imaginations as it ever did. Rolling Stone offers the sophisticated pop-music audience coverage that is both lively and informative at a level that matches the andi-ence's own sophistication. Like most innovators, Wenner didn's so much create his audience as perceive it, intuitively, for what it was, and then cater to it.

For the last several years the magazine has shown a quite remarkable propensity for self-cannibalization Rolling Stone has its own publishing house, Straight Arrow Books, but that is devoted mostly to worthy, often marginally commercial ventures. But there has also been a whole hitz of anthologies plucked from the magazine's pages, of which these three are only the latest. As the three different publishers indicate, what Rolling Stone does is farm out the rights to this material to mass-distribution publishers who then bring the countercultural message to the people.

There is nothing wrong with this, as long as one realizes what one is buying. A title like "The Rolling Stone Reader," for in-stance, might lead one to expect that this was a carefully chosen selection of a representative grouping of the best pieces of all different sorts that have appeared in the magazine over the last seven years. What it is, instead, is a seemingly random collection of highly variable hunks of prose from 1970 through 1973. The trouble with it is that the editors have apparently been unwilling or unable to duplicate pieces that have already appeared in other authologies, particularly those devoted to single authors. The result is that some of the best pieces the magazine ever ran have come out as expanded books or as part of collections by individual Rolling Stone writers, and do not reappear here.

The same complaint might will be made about "The Rolling Stone Rock h' Roll Reader." will some added grumbles. None of the material in it was written a ter 1970 and nowhere on the cover back or inside-front page is time limitation indicated. And there is no index, which is really inc. cusable. This book was actually put together in 1970, and then delayed for a variety of reasons Once again, it lacks some of the things that made Rolling Stone the bible of rock

The third of these books, "Tite Rolling Stone Record Review Vol. II," is the most honest of the lot. Here one has a properly indexed assortment of record reviews from 1970 through 1972, complement ing the first volume and providing in handy reference form what the magazine had to say about all the important pop albums that came out over that period.

Any of the various grab bags has its merits, of course. Its just that some day one would like the editors of the magazine to sit down and pick out their best—to give us an anthology based on the honesty and concern for excellence on which Rolling Stone's reputation rests, rather than on the simpler, more all-American pursuit of profit.

U.S. bridge players in the world open pair championship were comfortably placed here last night going into the final qualifying session.

British stars Irving Rose and Robert Sheehan led the stand-ings, with a Brazilian pair in close pursuit. The rankings were: First, Rose and Sheehan, 15,115; 2d, Gabriel Charas and Pedro Paul Assumpção of Brazil. 14,798; 3d, Michael Moss of New York and Paul Heitner of Johannesburg, South Africa, 14,767; 4th, Giorgio Beiladonna and Renato Mondolfo, Italy, 14,655; 5th, Benito Garosso and Federico Mayer, Italy, 14,478.

British players also led in the world women's pair champion-ship after five of the nine sessions of play The leaders were Rini Markus and Fritzi Gordon with 5,869 points. Petra Mansell and Alma Schneider of South Africa were second with 5,634. Many of the open pairs had trouble with the first hand of Monday's play, shown in the diagram. With 31 points in the combined North-South hand and two four-four fits, many pairs climbed to slam. With a favor-able heart position it would have been possible to make the slam. The bidding: in clubs, hearts or no-trump. The bad heart break doomed all slams. One pair came close to success when they played six clubs after the bidding shown. North's raise to four no-trump

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, was natural, and invited South to bid his suits up the line. When U.S. bridge players in the world South accepted the invitation the partnership succeeded in avoiding the heart fit.

A heart lead would have settled the issue, but West led the spade ten. South won in dumny, drew trumps, and cashed two more spade winners for a spade discard. He then played the ace and another diamond a play that would have succeeded if East had won the trick However, West won with the diamond king and was able to lead the heart ten, ensuring himself a heart trick. This was a close thing, for South would have made the slam if he had held the heart eight instead of the While referee Don Wicks was handing out 20 penalties for a total of 60 minutes in the opening period, Phil Esposito began paying back some of his critics.

He scored his ninth goal of the playoffs, converting Johnny Bucik's shot on a power play. Then Andre Savard tied the score as he watted patiently until Bernie Parent had been screened in the Fiver net before letting go a long shot. Though the second period was ecoteless as were the first 14 1/2 minutes of the third that was the time most discussed later by the players and coaches. Philadelphia's Bill Barber sent a high-riser past Gilbert for what proved the game-winner with 5-1/2 minutes to go. The insurance tally was made by André Dupong about two minutes later.

But what the scoreboard did not show was Bobby Schmeutz's shooting the puck at an empty Plyers' net and missing at tha start of period No. 2, and another "sure goal" that Bruin Wayne Cashman missed with a wide shot in the middle of that period.

Schmautz had a second great chance in the final period when the Brille right wing broke in slone on Parent. But Bernic, with fine judgment, collapsed at Schmautz's feet, taking away the

Archbishop Has Hand in Giving Peace to Dolphins

The reason is as Shula put it: "Now we can go to work on what we both want more than um thing, a third straight Super Bowl championship."

Robbic, president and general manager of the Dolphins, and Shula had an argument April 26 at the annual Dolphins banquet. Afterward, they didn't day when Archbishop Coleman Carroll of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Mismi invited them to lunch.

In a brief statement issued through his office yesterday evening, Rubble said: "Obviousby we are in communication to successfully provide championship football for the Miami Dolphins.

"If we have not been hehaving like champions. I regret lt." Rohbie added. "I am indebted to the archbisbop for bringing

David Porter lurned down on two grounds the Bengalr' request for preliminary injunction. Firt, he ruled that the team had not been hurt significantly, as management charged, with the departure of Chomyszak, a reserve defensive tackle, and Bergey, the star middle linebacker who doesn't play for the Virginia Ambassadors until 1976. Bergey signed a contract covering three years reputed to be worth $525,000. Second. Porter said that if he issued the injunction, then harm would be done to the goal of fostering "free competition in the marketplace for the sports

The latter remark hurt the NFL posture that its monopolistic Dractices are justifled by the unusual nature of team competition in pro football.

Different in Dallas

Two weeks ago, a state district court judge in Dallas ruled the other way, granting the Cowboys a temporary injunction preventing the WFL from signing any more of its players. Perhaps a factor in the decision was that the Cowboys had already lost three significant performers to the WFL. Calvin Hill, all-pro running hack; Craig Morton, No. 2 quarterback, and Mike Montgomery, regular wide recciver.

Enriching Life, Learning With Make-Believe

By Richard Flaste

NEW HAVEN (NYT).—Jerome L. Singer likes to sit at the picture window in his study, sipping sherry and staring out at the Connecticut woods that surround his house. It's a daydreamer's kind of view. And Mr. Singer is a daydreamer, always has

The other day the Yale psychologist was sitting by the window talking about daydreaming more than doing it, and the emptied sherry glass had an unusually active role to play.

"Brancon," Mr. Singer said, as he waved the glass through the air. "Bazza-"He was making believe that the glass was an airplane, just as a child might. Then he brought up his free hand and began to attack the glass. "Barrengers.

"I used to do this kind of thing when I was pretty young." Mr. Singer said, not detectably embarrassed that he also does it sometimes when he's 50. It was a demonstration of a critical early element in the development of make-believe: The pretender knows that what he's doing is just pretend that the glass is an airplane, sure, but still only a glass.

The ability to make that distinction appears in children as early as the second year as part of "symbolic play," the term used by the Swiss psychologist, Jean Piaget, to differentiate make-believe from games of mastery and games of rules.

Crossing Threshold

When a child can make that transformation—from glass to glass-airplane—he has crossed the threshold into the world of make-believe. He's got the capability to begin, as Mr. Singer puts it, "practicing the production of images." And he has started on a road that will carry him from imaginative play to daydreams and to other vivid modes of thinking.

Mr. Singer, who has spent much of his adult life researching the world of makebelieve, said he thinks that fantasy is a learning and emotional resource that ought to be prized and cultivated, although it has been widely maligned.

He sees make-believe play opposed by widespread prejudice. For example, the may be judged by adults as "childish." And the adolescent who is a daydreamer may be thought of as "regressive."

Mr. Singer sees himself not only as one who has done a great deal of research on his own but as a teacher who has spurred others to work in the field. His recently published book, "The Child's World of Make-Believe" (Academic Press, $11.75). incorporates some of his own investigations and those of colleagues he super-

Through his work and that of a handful of other research-oriented psychologists (including his wife, Dorothy), Mr. Singer said he believes that "images are just now coming back into their own," In the last 10 years, investigators have been examining, for instance, the relationship of imagery to a child's learning.

Mr. Singer is convinced that there are two kinds of mental recording systems, one verbal, the other using images. The verbal is efficient and fast, but the image system is better for storing and comprehending the details of complex concepts. The im-plication is that the child who is better equipped to handle images is also better equipped to learn.

Moreover, the imaginatively active child could carry that early make-believe into the ability to be a creative adult. It may be creativity in the broad sense—the innovative person who imagines his way to unconventional solutions. Or in the nar-rower sense—the Goethes of the world who turn childhood inner richness into fantasies to be transformed into the written word.

Even if the child doesn't become another Goethe, the ability to make believe may help him become the kind of person who can appreciate art because he recognizes it as part of his own inner ex-

And he may learn patience. In a widely cited piece of research, Dr. Singer once told children in an experimental group that they were trying out to be astronauts and one of the prerequisites for the job was an ability to wait quietly. He found that the children who were the best at fantasying were also the best at waiting. They would stand there, muttering things under their breath, pretending they were

It may seem, however, that the "good little boys and girls" are also passive and withdrawn—dreamin', as the Everly Brothers put it some years ago, their lives away. But Mr. Singer maintains that that impression, under most circumstances. would be wrong.

Fantasy, he said. "is an additional resource they have. They can still be curious, they can still be social."

He concedes, however, that sometimes fantasy gets out of hand. Sometimes 2 child confuses it with reality and behaves inappropriately, or his fantasy life takes on an obsessive quality.

If the child can't seem to cope with day-to-day events—be's flunking out of school, continually fighting with family members, isolated or always depressed-and he seems to be deeply involved in make-believe, then, Mr. Singer says, the fantasies may be something to worry about. But he hastens to assert that in his view the dangerous aspects of fantasy have been "greaty exaggerated."

He puts his emphasis on the healthful aspects of make-believe-how it trains children to be learners and planners (because they become adults who can envision the future, and empathizers (because they can imagine themselves in someone else's place). Mr. Singer said he thinks that a significant contribution he and his colleagues have made is experimental evidence indicating that imaginativeness can be taught. That evidence means it makes sense for a parent to try to teach his young child to develop images. An obvious and traditional way to encourage imagesy is through picture books and storytelling.

Parents' Role

Parents should also play pretend games with their children. And children need time on their own when they don't liave to be interacting with friends, siblings or parents, when they can dream or play in

In homes that provide precious little in the way of imaginative examples, Mr. Singer said he thinks television may prove invaluable as a source of fantasy material. But even in homes full of fantasy, TV still can be a helpful electronic storyteller.

In Mr. Singer's own childhood, of course, there was no TV, but there were plenty of books. He recalls that by age 6 he had already read "Tarsan of the Apes," and he relished imagining that he was a small version of the howling hero. His friends even called him Tarzan, because he couldn't resist continually telling them the jungle tales. In those days ha was young and cared, naturally enough, only about his own Tarzan. He grew up to care about everybody's.

PEOPLE:

John Kennedy, 13-year-old son of the late President, was robbed of his bicycle and tennis racket Tuesday as he was on his way to a tennis lesson in Central Park in New York City. The thief, about 18 pushed the boy from his bicycle, grabbed it and the tennis racket and rode off into the park. Young Kennedy was not hurt. In Washington, a U.S. Secret Service spokesman said young Kennedy still was under its protection, but declined to comment on the park incident.

A tennis instructor at the park said that the Secret Service agent assigned to the youngster had come to the courts to await his arrival. The instructor said that the agent told him that Kennedy had asked him to go to the court, and not accompany him on the bicycle ride through the park.

The waitresses were topiess. But the management wouldn't let Graham Firth, 28, and three friends into a London restaurant—they weren't wearing ties. Firth blew his cool, assaulted the man-ager—was arrested, confessed and freed on probation Tuesday.

It was no doubt a proud mo-ment in the life of Ralph Armstrong, an inmate of the New Merico State Prison, when he received a degree from the College of Santa Fe, which he had been attending on an inmate-rehabilitation program. Armstrong, serving 30 to 150 years on three rape convictions, was escorted by prison guards, along with 11 other student-immates, to the ceremonies in the college gymnasium. Upon hearing his name called, he strode up to the stage, took his diploms and then took off. A statewide alarm is out

Nobel Prize-winning post-writer Miguel Angel Astorias is critically ill in a Madrid hospital. The 75-year-old author was rushed to the emergency ward of Concepción Hospital Tuesday with an "scute respiratory condi-tion." A spokesman said his condition was "grave" and "station-ary." "He clings to life," said his wife Blanca, "because he wants to finish his last book, a novel concerning the fight of students in Central America for more freedom." Asturias won the Nobel Prize in 1967. He has been living in Paris since he retired from his post of Guatemalan am-
